Comments:

@@@Ladies and Gentlement, it has been a virtual nightmare trying to dispute inaccurate information on my credit report. All three CRAs are using unfair practices to verify information. Experian, especially, refuses to re-investigage. How can they claim to verify information when it's coming back incorrect over and over again. After submitting proof that you have not obtain any kind of validation from a CA, they still refuse to delete. People, like myself, who are battling with the CRAs are faced with denial of loans for a mortgage, car, jobs, etc. Consumers have the right to a fair and accurate credit report. Consumers have the right to dispute and not have their dispute deemed frivolous. I propose that all CRAs should abide to the FCRA or face severe consequences.
